Black Men in White Coats Youth Summit

SCHEDULE HIGHLIGHTS, OCTOBER 29, 2022

Session 1 (choose one)

Mental Health and Resilience in Black Youth

For educators, community leaders and parents

Engage in a moderated panel discussion with experts from the Brown community on the importance of mental health and ways to build resilience in Black youth.

Art in Medicine

For high school and post-baccalaureate students

Learn from medical student and photographer John Johnson about the importance of bridging your passions and the significance of representational images in medical education.

Activity and Reading: Placing a Cast on Teddy

For elementary school students

Hear a story and learn to place a cast on a stuffed animal in this relaxed activity for primary school learners.

Session 2 (choose one)

How to Raise a Doctor

For educators, community leaders and parents

How can you support your student on their educational journey? Dr. Dale will discuss good programs, resources to support curiosity in science, funding and cost vs. price and more in this session.

How to Prepare for a Great Medical School Application

For high school and post-baccalaureate students

Learn from medical students and students going through the medical school admissions process on how they prepared for medical school.

Pathways to Education

For middle school age students

A panel of students at Brown's School of Public Health and Warren Alpert Medical School will discuss resources for middle school age students.

Panel Discussions

Hear from current students in medicine and public health at Brown University

Keynote address by Dr. Dale Okorodudu, founder of Black Men in White Coats

Dr. Dale, as most like to call him, is an award-winning clinician and mentor. Among his accolades, he has been named to EBONY's Power 100 List and honored with the Mentoring King Award and multiple leadership awards.

About this event

This event is supported by the Charles O. Cooke M.D. Distinguished Visiting Lectureship, which was established in 1994 through a bequest by Mrs. Ruth Cooke Peterson so Brown could hold lectures (in any branch of medicine) that hold the promise of significant and lasting benefit to medical education at Brown, or to the community, or to the delivery of health care services.
